THEY'LL INVESTIGATE WELSH.

The Police Commissioners Will Hear of the Outrage Upon Harper.

The police commissioners will in all probability investigate the conduct of Herman Welsh, who was severely reprimanded by Judge Martine in general sessions court yesterday during the trial of Noah Hart, whom Welsh had arrested last week.

Harper, who is a colored man, had come on from Glasgow, Ulster County, to get married. Morton and Bleeker streets he met Herman Welsh and asked the way to his street, where his bride lived. Welsh struck Harper, struck him brutally and arrested him. Harper was indicted by the grand jury and yesterday he was tried.

When it became apparent that Harper had been guilty of no offense, Assistant District Attorney Macdonald said:

"I believe, Your Honor, that the Grand Jury made a mistake. It should have inquired further."

"There is evidently perjury here," was Judge Martine's comment, "and it is not on Harper's side."

According to the judge's instructions, the then acquitted Harper, who later assured the court that he would prefer charges against him, policeman Welsh went away to fill his interrupted engagement with his bride.
